

On the free boundary problem for a viscous fluid

N. Khatiashvili

I.Vekua Institute of Applied Mathematics of Tbilisi State University

The free boundary value problem in the Newtonian fluid for the Navier-Stokes equation is considered. The problem is studied for the low Reynolds number by means of the conformal mapping method. In some particular cases the effective solutions are obtained.